

Law and Order Report

Speaker bios

Peggy Utesch is a writer and graphic designer from Silt, Colorado. A member of the Western Colorado Congress, Peggy lives in one of the last agriculturally producing areas on Colorado's I-70 corridor. Encana, North America's largest gas producer, has drilled 24 wells within a half mile of her home.

Donald Nelson farms and ranches in oil and gas country near Keene, North Dakota. He is the vice-chair of WORC and a member of the Dakota Resource Council.

Clint McRae is a 4th generation rancher near Forsyth, Montana, and president of the Rosebud Protective Association, an affiliate of the Northern Plains Resource Council.

Oscar Simpson is a geologist and former water resource and environmental specialist with the state of New Mexico. A sportsman, Oscar is the president of the New Mexico Wildlife Federation and lives in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Nancy Sorenson is experiencing coalbed methane development on her ranch near Arvada, Wyoming. She has served on the Governor's National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System Task Force and on the Executive and Legislative Interim Committee on Split Estates. A former teacher, Nancy represents the Powder River Basin Resource Council on WORC's board of directors.